MEN ARE POWERLESS

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with tritars or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newb's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"To-day this cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample. The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Marriage of King Alfonso.

Already interest is being manifested in the forthcoming marriage of King Alfonso and Princess Ena of Battenberg.

The preliminaries will, in accordance with Spanish etiquette, be as follows:

"An ambassador extraordinary with plenipotentiary powers will go to England to demand the hand of the Princess. The matrimonial contract will be drawn up, read and signed in London. It will be ratified by King Edward and King Alfonso."

It is practically certain that Princess Ena will enter Spain from the north at Iran, where she will be met by the chief major domo of the palace in behalf of King Alfonso, as well as municipal and military authorities and the British Ambassador, who will first present Princess Ena and her mother and then their suites to the Spanish authorities.

The Princess and her mother will then proceed to the Palace at El Pardo, seven miles from Madrid, where they will remain for six days before the wedding. They will be met there by King Alfonso and the Queen mother. Two days before the wedding there will be a solemn reading of the marriage treaty, which is practically equivalent to a betrothal.

On the wedding day the Princess will leave El Pardo early, in strict incognito, without escort of any kind. King Alfonso and two adjutants on horseback will join her in the neighborhood of El Pardo and accompany her to the entrance of the city. The Princess will then be robed in a building which has not yet been selected, where the tressouer will have been exhibited. She will preserve her incognito until she enters the gala carriage to go to the church.

According to the usage of the Spanish Court, all the articles of the tressouer will be exhibited, even to the most minute details of household linen. The dresses will be on lay figures and the jewelry and other articles in glass cases under the care of haberdashers. Entrance to the exhibition will be free to all classes.

To Cut Down Printing Bills.

To do away with unnecessary printing originating in the departments, and to improve the form of the annual reports and other department documents, the President has issued the following instructions, applicable to all the executive departments:

"There shall be appointed by the head of each of the executive departments an advisory committee on the subject of printing and publication. The chairman shall be an assistant secretary, or other qualified official, and at least one member of the committee shall have had practical experience in editing and printing."

"It shall be the duty of such committee, under direction of the head of the department, to see that unnecessary matter is excluded from reports and publications; to see that copy is carefully edited before and after going to the printing office; to do away with the publication of unnecessary tables, and to require that statistical matter be published in condensed and intelligible form; to supervise the preparation of blank forms; to require the frequent revision of mailing lists; to prevent duplication of printing by different bureaus; to exclude unnecessary illustrations from department documents, and to prevent the printing of the maximum edition allowed by law when a smaller edition will suffice; to recommend to the head of the department, for inclusion in the recommendations contained in his annual reports needed changes in the statutes governing department publications."

Anti-Mafia Organization.

Recent activity of the Black Hand in the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys, Pa., has alarmed the law-abiding Italians of the region and prompted them to organize for the extermination of the banditti.

Threats to extort tribute have been followed by murder, with the result that a reign of terror prevails among the compatriots of the criminals who have transferred to American soil some of the worst features of trans-Atlantic brigandage. It has come to such a desperate pass that it is no longer safe for an Italian to be considered prosperous in that section.

With a view to halting the operations of the desperadoes, there has been formed in Carbondale an anti-Mafia organization called the St. Joseph Society, and this is to be extended to every town in the anthracite region.

Rev. Father Cerutti, of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Carbondale, is a leader in the organization.

Since an attempt several days ago to blow up the home of Antonio Fazio, in the center of Scranton, following a threat to kill him and his family because he refused to pay $500, Italian business men in various parts of the city have received demands for tribute money under pain of death.

Law-abiding men are arming and declaring themselves in favor of lynching as the only proper remedy for the terrorists, and it is not at all improbable that a vendetta may ensue as a result of the present condition of affairs.

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused It to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

Yours for Health

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons, the combined forces, with their mother, and daughter to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles.

Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkhams sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of women's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equalled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originality passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.
